The AI will never attack a fort unless it is surrounded, and will never attack anything on the map if there is any chance it will lose a fight. This happens to me often when I attack a city, and then the city decides to make peace instead. If the city is more than 2 cities away from my capital city, I will never attack it. This ruins any chance of winning, because I can't have cities with enough food if the enemy can sit back and sieze all of my cities. This happens to me on the complete vanilla scenario. The AI is a joke in this game. Every other A.I. is programmed to conquer the world with the most money/food, and if your not the best at making money or food, you can never make it. I like the game, but it needs more A.I. Also not including my favorite types of Cities and Districts, such as a city/district that grows food when the surrounding area gets destroyed. I think it would be a fun idea for a game. However, it is extremely unfair for the AI to gain more Gold every time a City/District is destroyed. I mean, they also have to destroy all the fortresses and sentries. Very good for starting out, but for my taste nothing beats the original Settlers. Settlers 2 is a lot better, but still too complicated. Love the concept of the game, but I think the AI is broken. All the AIs I have played seem to have a hard time adjusting to me attacking a fort and them making peace. Then the next game it's the same way. Like I will attack an enemy city and they will just make peace with me. I haven't played very long, but I believe this is a much more solid game than Settlers 1.
